

“Robert and Barbara, I love your videos and book. I was reading it on-line, but I realized I need to study and review the content. I wish I knew both of you! I watch the videos over and over.

I want to hug both of you everyday!
Thank you for this gift to the universe.”

benefitted from gaining the knowledge of “The Generational Distinction”.

The book cover illustrates
“The Generational Distinction”,
where the black color represents contracting energy and the white color represents expanding energy. The grandfather is contracting, his son is expanding, and his grandson is contracting.

Our World Market

“The Generational Distinction”

Our Connection to Life

"OUR WORLD MARKET, The Generational Distinction, Our Connection To Life" was written by my husband, Robert Blazer, shortly after a good friend's unexpected passing. Robert then realized the urgency of sharing this valuable information. It is his legacy. The book was written in approximately six weeks with the intention to document what he had discovered.

After many years of working with families from all over the world, he discovered a pattern that exists in every family. He saw that fathers and sons were opposite in the way they contribute, and that mothers and daughters were opposites in the way they contribute. The words he uses to describe these differences are "expanding, space creating energy" and "contracting, time creating energy".

We have taken these insights and applied them to our workforce, and have been able to achieve amazing results with people of all different cultures working together in harmony.

Many of our employees would tell you this information not only makes their jobs more enjoyable, but that it has had a profound affect on them and their families. It has allowed them to understand their children and their spouse in a way in which it was not possible before.

It is Robert's heartfelt desire to share this with all people. I urge you to read it carefully and discuss it with your family members and closest friends so you can see it for yourselves. It is "the difference that makes the difference".

Our Stand

We declare that the world is designed to work.

*We are responsible for what does not work.
We make the difference.*

No matter how technologically advanced we become, we cannot escape our fundamental relationships with food and each other.

The possibility of these relationships is the world market. In this context, the world works for everyone free of scarcity and suffering.

We commit ourselves to the possibility this world market is for future generations of this planet.

"In September 2014 my wife and I received a copy of the book: Our World Market "The Generational Distinction" Our Connection to Life. We agreed to take turns reading, chapter by chapter, and then discuss its content together.

However, it was only after re-reading Chapter 1 together that we were able to see ourselves as energy and how this energy expresses itself in human being. It is described as being either expanding energy or contracting energy. Reading together as a couple helped us see the opposite energies we are. It also helped us see our son and me, as opposite energies; and our daughter and her mother as opposite energies.

Upon further reading, we were able to see how the "Generational Distinction", Our Connection to Life allows us to interact with each other relatively unencumbered by emotional, psychological, social and spiritual entanglements.

The information in this book has supported our marriage by providing a bridge of understanding that has put us on the path to eliminating scarcity and suffering in our lives. Thank you Robert Blazer for allowing me to share, if only briefly, how as written in Chapter 1, "Another Way to See Ourselves", transforms the world we are living in today into the world we are designed to live in."
